Dear Sir:

I take it that yours of the 15th constitutes denial of my claim for reimbursement for the loss of my seabag in 1955.

Under the circumstances I am sure you will have no objection to my seeking redress elsewhere, and you will wish to permit me to:

1. Establish and maintain such files as I may consider needful and convenient to the pursuit of my claim, although there are not available to me any safekeeping facilities.
2. Reveal openly any names, dates, places, and such other details as I may feel necessary to the satisfactory resolution of my claim.
3. Bring civil suit or sign criminal complaints against any person or organization I may believe to bear legal responsibility to reimburse me.
4. Petition the House of Representatives to initiate a bill for my relief.

Past experience with correspondence with your office indicates that an uneconomical delay in reply can be expected. Under the circumstances, non-reply received by me within ten days of your receipt of this letter will constitute your assent to the contents of this letter.

Very truly yours,
